

STYLOPIDAE

The systematic placement of the Strepsiptera is controversial. At one time or another the Strepsiptera have been treated by different authors as: 1) the sister group of the Coleoptera, 2) a family Stylopidae of the Coleoptera, 3) related to the Hymenoptera, and 4) related to the Diptera. The most widely used relationship, at present, is as a family of the Coleoptera, although a broader interpretation of the group as a full order appears to be rapidly gaining acceptance. Those who treat the Strepsiptera as a full order have recently proposed reclassifications of the Strepsiptera, but these classifications are often conflicting in their treatment of families and subfamilies. This check list takes a middle group treating the group as an order containing a single family the Stylopidae. No subfamily grouping of genera has been attempted.
